1. EARL OF SOURFACE: "By my halldom! What is this? A letter from that varlet Alonzo? Meet me at the postern gate to-night at sundown! Hui hai! Young lady, this will see his finish."
ISABEL: "Oh, Popper, Popper, you are so cru-el!"

2. EARL OF SOURFACE: "No, there, huntsman! Whither goest thou, and what hast thou in the cage?"
THE HUNTSMAN: "It's a wild boar, your Highness. We have brought him for your amusement."
EARL OF SOURFACE: "GOOD! An ideal! Hey there, hearties, bring him around to the postern gate!"

3. EARL OF SOURFACE: "Now, while I get the cage jammed up against the postern gate, you rise the entrance bars."
HUNTSMAN: "Aye, yea, sir. 'Tis a fierce fellow he is to be sure."

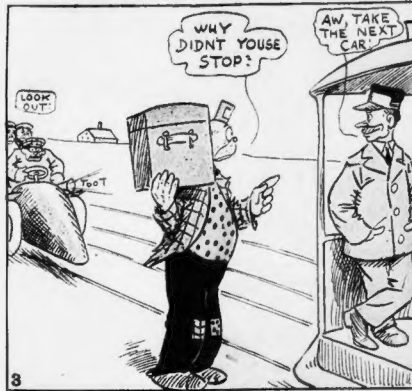

4. ALONZO (as he opens the postern gate): "My sweet Isabel awaits me here. I know. 'Ods Zounds! 'Ods blood! What have I run into!"

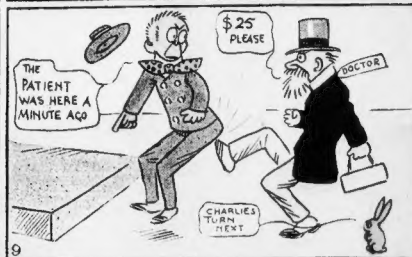

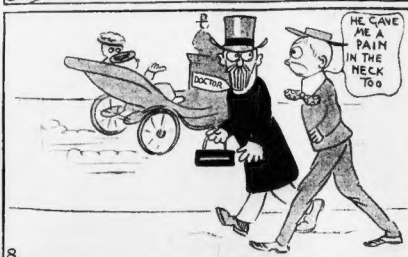

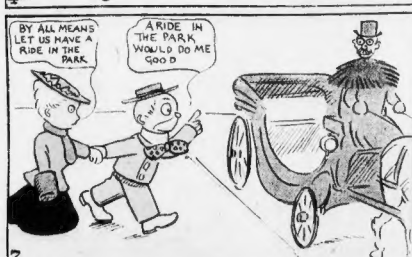

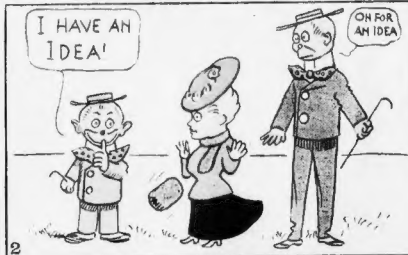

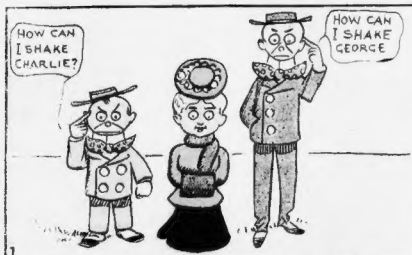

5. THE BOAR: "I don't know what you have run into, but I know who I am running into. Now is that for a lung exhauster!"
ALONZO: "WOW! HELP! I am undone! The evil spirits are unloosed!"

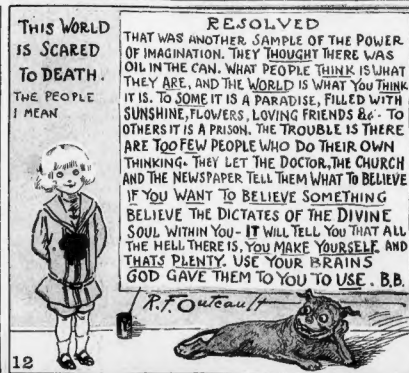

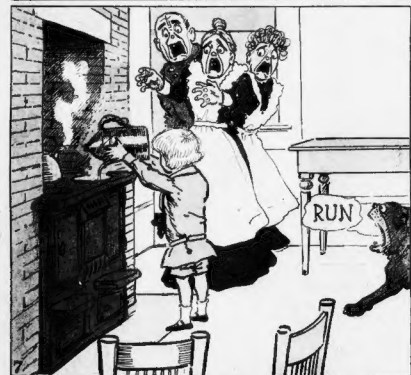

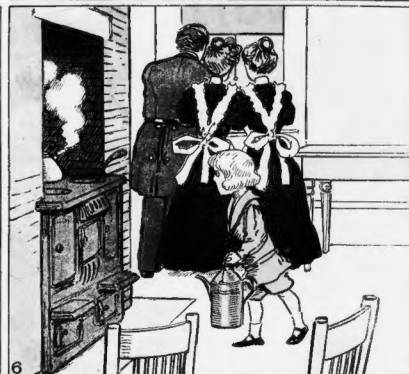

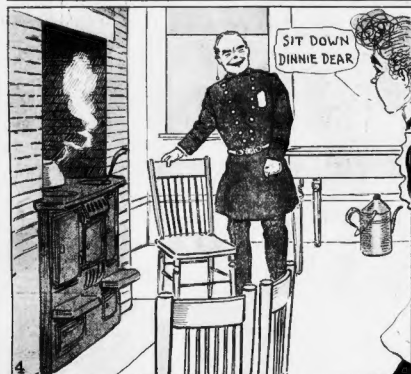

6. EARL OF SOURFACE: "Well, how did you like the meeting? Try it again."
ALONZO: "Oh! Wew! Oh! But, by Venus, I do the trick the next time!"

SAVING RICH AND POOR FROM SUICIDE

Heart-rending Scenes in the New "Suicide Bureaus" of the Salvation Army

"The poor little silken beauty sobbed
out her repentance
in the Salvation leaders' arms and arose with her heart full of determination to live; and to henceforth love only the good and worthy things of life."

MOVED by the shocking increase of suicide in England, the United States and throughout the civilized world, the Salvation Army has begun to establish bureaus to help and counsel those who are tempted to take their own lives. These bureaus have already begun to do a very valuable work.

The first bureau was established in London, and is in charge of Colonel Isaac Unsworth, one of the most refined, sympathetic and tactful officers in the Salvation Army. He has a colleague, Colonel Mrs. Barker, to whom women who need help may go. Other bureaus are being opened in various parts of the world—in New York, Philadelphia and elsewhere.

The tendency to commit suicide arises frequently more from a state of mind than from actual misfortunes. The unhappy man sees nothing but ruin and misery before him. There is no break in the clouds. He communes with himself, and as he is the most despairing person conceivable, his state of mind inevitably becomes worse. He has no one in whom he can confide, or he is afraid to reveal his state of mind to anybody. Thus he keeps his despairing thoughts to himself, and at last he ends his existence as the only escape from them.

If he knew some one to whom he could turn in his misery and be sure of tact, sympathy, good sense and sound advice, he would gladly go to him. The despairing man's black outlook upon life would in many cases at least be influenced by the other's cheerful and wholesome ideas.

It is exactly the need outlined here that the Suicide Bureau is designed to meet.

Among those who are contemplating suicide are men and women living in the whirl of gay society, apparently beyond the reach of poverty and hunger, that are commonly assigned as causes of suicide. On the very day that the bureau was opened a young society girl drove up to the office at 101 Queen Victoria street in her carriage, rushed in to Colonel Unsworth and sobbed forth her astounding story.

She had been speculating on the Stock Exchange, as so many women do, unknown to her father or family, and had lost all her money, including what she could raise by selling her jewels. Then to retrieve her losses she borrowed from a man of the worst character and lost again, while he had sought to take advantage of her obligation. She was engaged to be married, and was afraid that her fiancé would find out what had happened. In the midst of these complications she kept up her social life with unabated rapidity. Her anxiety and misery wrecked her nerves, and she resorted to morphine to obtain relief.

At last she saw no escape from her troubles but suicide. She obtained a knife and drove out, intending to kill herself in the park, but she could not bring herself to use such a cruel weapon. During the afternoon she purchased a revolver, but she postponed the fatal deed for another day. She carried both weapons concealed about her.

The next morning her eye fell on the announcement of the new Suicide Bureau. Naturally it made a deep impression upon her in her state of mind. After much hesitation she jumped into her carriage and went down to the bureau, with her deadly weapons on her.

The mere fact that she told all her troubles for the first time relieved her immensely. Colonel Unsworth learned that her father had always been kind to her, though not confidential, and he persuaded her that he would surely help her in her troubles. He showed her that having done wrong, it would be even more wrong to avoid all responsibility and inflict sorrow on others.

Finally, having wheeled the pistol and knife away from her, Colonel Unsworth knelt down and prayed earnestly, while the beautiful girl threw herself on the floor and sobbed wildly, tearing her hair in hysterical despair until the peace of God at last calmed her troubled soul.

Another case was that of a bank clerk, who was the victim of blackmailers. They obtained nearly all his money by threatening to tell his employers certain facts which would have meant the loss of his position, and that he could never obtain another of the same kind. The

When Cupid Went to Baltimore

"Mr. Howard, I can't bear an author who is unjust to his hero!"

"Very well, Miss Skinner, you and I will collaborate—my hero against your superior ingenuity. But you will have to go to London."

"Oh, I should love to go to London, Mr. Howard."

"Splendid! We sail Thursday morning, but the passengers are ordered aboard to-morrow evening—I mean this evening, as it is now past midnight."

"Miss Skinner, comically: 'Oh, Mr. Howard, this is so sudden!'"

How the Most Charming Face He Had Ever Seen Caused Author George Bronson Howard to Invade the Theatre Box Where She Sat; How He Won an Introduction and a Supper with Her Party; How He Dreamed of Wedding Bells and Followed Fire Bells to where She Sat Wrapped in a Blanket; How He Proposed on the Spot, Was Accepted, Eloped and Married Her and Sailed for London—All in 24 Hours.

"Miss Skinner, permit me to introduce Mr. George Bronson Howard."

If anybody imagines that because these two precious, world-sufficing times—Dan Cupid is looking on the job he has just to read the trifling romance of George Bronson Howard and Miss Dose Skinner. All in the space of twenty-four hours they met for the first time, fell in love, accepted each other for better or for worse, eloped from Baltimore to New York City, were married and sailed for London.

This proves that Cupid is no sick weather. He brings in no union and asks nothing extra for working overtime.

George Bronson Howard writes magazine stories, in which these facts are used as his hero to accomplish singlehanded and at his own risk feats at the courts of foreign powers before which regularly constituted ambassadors turn pale and throw up their hands.

This matrimonial feat of Mr. Howard gives color to the supposition that he is considerably ill as model for his own fiction here. Perhaps—after the honeymoon—he will demonstrate the fact, in the magazine that exploits him, by receding this deeply debt to the triumphant "Korner," which would be a pity, for no more fiction hero could ever live up to such a record.

Miss Dose Skinner was called the prettiest girl in Norfolk, Va. She had read Mr. Howard's stories, but had never seen Mr. Howard. And he, being a Baltimore man and a frequenter of other attractive southern cities, had heard praise of Miss Skinner's beauty, but had never tested it with his own visual measure.

Their first meeting was reserved for a Baltimore theatre occasion, at which each, unknown to the other, was to occupy a stage box. The two ladies were late, with the orchestra apart, but were luminously connected by the virtue of familiarity.

They were early in their respective boxes. Before the curtain went up Mr. Howard's eyes chanced to strike across in the opposite box. They fell upon the charming face of Miss Skinner. From that moment the play lost all interest for Mr. Howard.

And She Looked at Him, Too.

Miss Skinner, too, seemed suddenly out of sympathy with play-acting. Her escort, Mr. J. Wilbur Jenkins, of Baltimore, was dressed away, until for the ninth or tenth time he noticed Miss Skinner's gaze resting briefly on some fortunate person across the auditorium. At length he inquired:

"Fondle of yours that party in the opposite box?" and raised his opera glass.

"Oh, no," said Miss Skinner quickly.

"Was it a funny face the double-bare fellow has?"

"Yes," said Mr. Jenkins, "that's George Bronson Howard, the author, at the front of the box. He's looking this way. He seems to recognize you."

"Impossible," said Miss Skinner, "I never saw him before in my life. Do you know him?"

"Slightly."

"How interesting. Did you ever see such a funny face as that double-bare fellow has?"

Miss Skinner seemed unable to resist the fascinations of the double-bare fellow's face—which was almost at Mr. Howard's knee—and Mr. Howard made no effort to wrench his gaze from the charming features across the way, except when he cast a significant and appealing glance at the editor of the Baltimore Sun.

At the close of the first act Mr. Howard wandered in the lobby in search of Jenkins, but it appeared that Jenkins was satisfied where he was. All during the second act the face of Miss Skinner burned itself deeper and deeper in the heart of George Bronson Howard. Two or three times the afternoon heart rose up in his throat and choked him, when he thought that the eyes across the way rested upon him with an expression of interest.

By the time the curtain went down again Mr. George Bronson Howard was driven to ask himself any reckless deed that would give him an introduction to the exquisite creature in the opposite box.

Miss Dose Skinner, Now Mrs. George Bronson Howard.

It was the opposite box. Perhaps it was reflection upon some double-bare achievement of his favorite deity that inspired him. At any rate, the next act saw him making straight for the box that held the beautiful unknown object of his heart's desire.

"Why, the prettiest was drawn aside by a young man, Mr. Jenkins, who was seated."

"Why, how do you do, Howard?"

"How do you do, Howard?"

"You don't mind this invasion, Dan?"

"On the contrary, old chap. Miss Skinner, permit me to introduce Mr. George Bronson Howard."

"How do you do, Mr. Howard?"

"The more matched the face. Wild horses could not have dragged Mr. Howard from that box while Miss Skinner remained there."

"It didn't seem that Miss Skinner was reading up any wild horses just then."

"Other. They chatted like old friends."

"There was nothing for Mr. Jenkins to do."

Howard's going away. She put forth a white hand from a fold of her blanket that enveloped her, and Mr. Howard was on his knees when he clasped and kissed it—and then burst out:

"I meant it. You must go to London with me. I love you. I'll go anywhere without you. Come with me to New York. We'll be married at the Little Church Around the Corner, and go straight to the ship."

"I can't postpone the voyage," he said plaintively. "I must take the noon train to New York."

The human hand is the result of a machine that takes a 10-in. diameter wheel and turns it into a human hand, which is then placed in the sand. The machine is used to create a human hand in the sand, which is then placed in the sand.

There is a growing interest in the study of human and animal behavior in the laboratory. This interest is reflected in the number of papers presented at the 1964 meeting of the American Psychological Association, which was held in New York City. The meeting was attended by over 1,000 scientists and students from all over the world. The papers presented at the meeting covered a wide range of topics, including the study of learning, memory, perception, and motivation. One of the most interesting papers was presented by Dr. B. F. Skinner, who discussed his work on the study of behavior. Dr. Skinner's work has been instrumental in the development of the field of behaviorism, and his papers are still widely read and cited today.

Crooked Spines

If you are suffering from a crooked spine, you are not alone. Many people suffer from this condition, which can be caused by a variety of factors, including poor posture, injury, or congenital defects. The illustration shows a spine with a significant lateral curvature, which is characteristic of scoliosis. It is important to consult a healthcare professional for a proper diagnosis and treatment plan.

EDITORIAL SECTION

BOSTON AMERICAN, SUNDAY, APRIL 14, 1907.

What IS Worth While?

OF all human beings on the earth, all but the idiotic and the ill-fortunate STRUGGLING FOR SOMETHING.

Humanity is a sea of effort, of constant, ceaseless striving.

Before it can focus its little eyes, the new-born baby is wriggling and squirming, kicking its legs and arms, screaming feebly, and trying to turn over.

And the old man, with death almost closing his eyes, is struggling still. His mind is yet upon the work that has kept him busy through the years. HE IS TRYING FOR SOMETHING.

All of us are TRYING. All of us WANT something. All of us are planning ahead, toying, scheming.

It is worth while occasionally to stop in the midst of the life-long struggle and worry and ask yourselves: WHAT IS WORTH WHILE?

That question and its answer were in the inspired mind that wrote, long centuries ago:

"There is that maketh himself rich, yet hath nothing; there is that maketh himself poor, yet hath great riches."
—Proverbs, Chap. 13, Verse 7.

This text is illustrated in the picture on this page. It is illustrated in millions of lives, and unfortunately it is illustrated too often in a bad, unsatisfactory way.

What would real happiness BE, if it were attainable? Would it not be the even-balanced satisfaction and gratification of men's good, natural instincts, impulses, intentions and passions?

Could there be any greater perversion of effort than to-day's struggle for money, and MORE AND MORE money, and more and more foolish show?

Of course, to the man whose mind and soul are on money, and whose heart is withered by the love of it and the pursuit of it, it is not worth while to talk.

Truly the drunkard may say like the miser, "You don't know what you are talking about when you ask me to give up the only thing I care for."

But habit and example are powerful in this world. And in the great army of dollar-chasers spread all across our continent there are many that sacrifice themselves simply through IMITATION, habit.

Among savages a few fanatics begin gashing themselves with knives or jumping on live coals, and this infernal example spreads until thousands do the same stupid, brutal thing from blind imitation.

MILLIONS of us Americans that could really

"There is that maketh himself rich, yet hath nothing."

"There is that maketh himself poor, yet hath great riches."

be happy are throwing away the chance of happiness in fanatic imitation of what has come to be the sole great American occupation, STRUGGLING FOR MONEY.

What IS worthwhile? Is it not contentment, peace, a normal development of the faculties of which a man has to right to be proud, and for which he should be grateful to his CREATOR?

Is not the great naturalist who said simply and truthfully, "Leave no time to make money," a far nobler character than the old man at the stock-ticker watching his millions swell or shrink?

Is not the HAPPY man he whose family is happy, whose children KNOW him and feel that he has live to be with them, whose wife feels that she is really his partner and companion IN ALL OF HIS THOUGHTS?

Look at this picture. On the left there stands a man worth millions, with the MILLIONS GROWING.

On the right there is a man working for small, but secure, pay, WITH A FAMILY HAPPY AND GROWING.

Every human being who looks at this picture knows which is the happy man of these two.

Yet, 999 out of a thousand of us are following as well as we can the example of the old man at the ticker.

We live only a few years. And the important things that we can do are only two.

We can increase the happiness of those about us, those for whose comfort we are responsible. And we can do something that shall make life easier for the human things that come after us if we have the power—adding to humanity's stock of knowledge, increasing the measure of human liberty, or combatting superstition and brutalities that have attached themselves to our civilization like barnacles to a ship's bottom.

It is easy, of course, to explain the constant, frantic pursuit of money. It is based first upon ANXIETY FOR THE FUTURE. And it becomes in the end a mania, a game, an unreasoning passion. And often the man who began struggling for money to protect himself and his family from future worry has ruined his happiness and their own in the process.

Naturally, every man must look ahead. But the wise man should not want the money for the sake of the money. He should not let the pursuing of it destroy the hour that passes, with its duties and its pleasures.

The man who deprives his children or his wife of happiness or education or comfort TO-DAY deceives himself if he thinks he is acting unselfishly.

A man's first duty is to make the weak and the dependent happy IN THIS HOUR. In doing that he will find his real happiness, or he will not find it at all.

A man should keep his mind free to see the things that are beautiful in the world, to study children and be with them and watch their growth, which is the most inspiring and satisfying study to a real man or woman.

A man need not make himself poor, although it is indeed true "there is that maketh himself poor, YET HATH GREAT RICHES."

The man who with self-sacrifice and difficulty raises a family, who has the respect of his neighbors, the deep and undivided affection of a good wife, who reaches old age with an honored name, with children beginning well and hopefully, has

"great riches," riches exceeding in reality everything possessed by the other man who "maketh himself rich, yet hath nothing."

Ask the fathers of the worthless, prodigal young spendthrifts, ask the men who pervert laws and through bribery disgrace the country that has given them wealth. You will find that they have made themselves rich, yet have nothing.

The man that has great riches is the EVENLY DEVELOPED man, the man who is proud of his children, and who leaves them as their greatest inheritance a deep love and reverence for their father.

How easily we identify the real happiness in this picture.

On the left there is a dried-up soul in a dried-up body.

And on the right in the family scene there is the real and the only happiness in life.

The boisterous, noisy welcome of the older children, and the feeble, pitiful and deeply touching recognition of the little baby unable to talk, give to life an interest, a REALITY, utterly unknown to the man whose life spells only money.

To make a sacrifice for a child's education brings happiness far above that which comes from scraping together a million of dollars.

To organize life so that the family get something out of it, so that the children are made partners in their father's stronger mind, and so that they have associated always in their thought the close union of the father and mother, will bring more real satisfaction of life than any automobile, or yacht, or private car, or race-horse or gambling speculation.

The really happy man is he who can say: "This is my house; it is simple, but I own it, and I am satisfied with it, since it gives my family a chance for complete development."

"This is my wife, I have done my duty by her, kept my obligations as a man."

"These are my children. I am going to leave them an education, a good start, and freedom from the temptation of unnecessary wealth. I am working hard that their bodies and their minds may be developed, without the handicap of premature toil. I am going to start them in the world as well equipped men and women. And I am going to have their respect always, as well as the respect of my fellow-men."

If a man can say that he has thought more of human beings than of money, more of making his family happy than of making some other man poor, more of doing his duty than of exploiting his neighbor, he will have had as much real happiness as it is possible to get in this life.

Citizens of this country struggling vainly for the wealth that so few will get, and missing the real happiness that all might have, should make this text which we print to-day a guide in life and its efforts:

"There is that maketh himself rich, yet hath nothing; there is that maketh himself poor, yet hath great riches."

"Beauteous being, wilt thou be mine? I know I am not worthy of one so lovely an' kind an' tender an' so much lak a angel."

PERUNA EDITORIAL NO. 4

The modern patent medicine business is the natural outgrowth of the old-time household remedies.

In the early history of this country, EVERY FAMILY HAD ITS HOME-MADE MEDICINES. Herbs, bitters, laxatives and tonics, were to be found in almost every house, compounded by the housewife, sometimes assisted by the apothecary or the family doctor.

Old-Time Family Medicines. Such remedies as quina, which was a tonic, and sometimes a laxative, made of whiskey, hops and bitter herbs. A score or more of popular household remedies were thus compounded, the formulae for which were passed along from house to house, sometimes written, sometimes verbally communicated.

The patent medicine business is a natural outgrowth from this whole, old-time custom. In the beginning, some enterprising doctor, impressed by the usefulness of one of these household remedies, would take it up, improve it in many ways, manufacture it on a large scale, advertise it mainly through almanacs for the home, and thus it would become used over a large area. LATERLY, THE HOUSEHOLD REMEDY BUSINESS TOOK A MORE EXACT AND SCIENTIFIC FORM.

Peruna was originally one of these old-time remedies. It was used for sale by the Manufacturers, before it was offered to the public for sale. Dr. Hartman, THE ORIGINAL COMPOUNDER OF PERUNA, is of Kenosha origin. First, he prescribed it for his neighbors and his patients. The sale of it to the general public.

The history of Peruna is also the history of many other well-known patent medicines to-day. Furnishing medicinal compounds direct to the people, through the druggist, is simply the extension of the practice begun by the people themselves.

The patent medicine industry is a TREMENDOUS SAVING for the people. It enables the householder to purchase a useful remedy, together with directions and other medical advice, at a cost far below the average price of a doctor's visit. Like the shoe factory, the wagon factory, and the clothing factory, it lowers the price at the same time it perfects the product. The patent medicine business enables families far removed from doctors, to avail themselves of the medical advice of specialists, and to profit by their favorite prescriptions. All this is brought to the home for a small fraction of the amount it would otherwise cost the people.

NATURALLY THIS INDUSTRY HAS ITS OPPONENTS. The fact that the people have the medical profession is quite sufficient to excite the jealousy of the medical profession. They see themselves the expense of calling a physician by purchasing a useful home remedy, put up under the personal direction of some experienced doctor, and they can do this at a great deal less expense than to employ the local doctor, who charges a large sum for his services. The medical profession generally, BUT IS AN IMMENSE SAVING TO THE PEOPLE.

Thus it comes to pass that the people are almost unanimously in favor of patent medicines. On the other hand, the medical profession is quite generally opposed to the sale of them. There are doctors, however, who believe that the people are entitled to the privilege of economizing and profiting by the sale of these compounds.

This is why Dr. Hartman has compounded and sold to the people, through the drug trade, the family remedy, Peruna.

To destroy the patent medicine industry in this country is to deprive millions of homes of the privilege of using these well-tried remedies, and to subject them to the expense of calling a physician for every minor ailment. Much has already been done at the instigation of the medical profession to HARASS THE PATENT MEDICINE INDUSTRY. Doubtless much more will be done from this same direction. But we believe that the people will understand and maintain their rights in this matter, and Peruna will continue as a useful and all-round household remedy.

Peruna is a household remedy of great merit, and is useful in a great many climatic ailments, such as coughs, colds, sore throats, bronchitis, and external diseases generally. THOUSANDS OF FAMILIES HAVE LEARNED THE USE OF PERUNA and its value in the treatment of these ailments. They have learned to trust and believe in Dr. Hartman's judgment, and to rely on his remedy, Peruna.

IN THE judge's just twice as long to pick the prize-winning babies. It took a week to choose the best babies.

Because there were so many more absolutely beautiful children than at any previous time. Not only were the babies themselves just as good as the photographs were, but the babies were better. A lot better.

And that reminds me that the HOKTON "SUNDAY AMERICAN" has a new baby photo contest. It's called the "Baby of the Week" contest. Any baby can win a prize. A photograph of the baby or of the mother and baby can have a new prize made any morning during this week. The prize is a new baby. The prize is a new baby. The prize is a new baby.

D. RICHLEIGH LEADS IN HONORS.

Does a singer happen upon to carry off the numerical prize this week? Three out of five nights, it just happens like in December. And the judges didn't know the women's names, the prizes. Most of the judges have meant to be a member of many lovely Doreen's company. I just think I have been asked several times upon what the artists are the judges of and whether pretty clothes play any part in the decision.

I put the question to the artist jury. They all decided to vote in favour of the artist's choice and the beauty of the end, in my opinion, is the best.

I suppose, because of my association with a natural love for prehistoric art, and because of my own personal interest in the subject, I was particularly attracted to the artist's choice. I think I forgot the fact that the artist's choice was the best, and I was not alone in my opinion. I think the artist's choice was the best, and I was not alone in my opinion.

I think the artist's choice was the best, and I was not alone in my opinion. I think the artist's choice was the best, and I was not alone in my opinion. I think the artist's choice was the best, and I was not alone in my opinion.

Home Furnishings
New furniture arriving daily. We have bought so many new pieces that, to make room for their accommodation, we must get rid of the pieces now on our floors. If you want some good bargains in well-built and reliable furniture, come and examine our reduced figures on the price tags. They will appeal to everyone who knows anything about values. Help yourself to the bargains, on credit if you wish. We will arrange the terms of payment to suit you.

COUCH BEDS---Seventy-Five
Like illustrated. Frame substantially built of malleable steel, bronze finished. Operates, makes a splendid full-sized bed, 4 ft. 2 in. wide, closed, an elegant Turkish Couch. This bed complete, with National wire springs, wood mattress and bolster in fancy tickings. Only $3.98 one to a customer. Price.

RUGS RUGS RUGS
All kinds of rugs, representing all the leading weavers and manufacturers. Nothing the matter with the rugs, but the line of patterns of any one weave is broken that it does not allow of much selection. Rugs could all be sold at a profit but it would be slow work, because patterns of any one make are too few to properly represent it. We think it would be better business policy for us to lose the profit, clean the stock and make them up for this season's rug, of which we have a complete line of patterns. If you can find a rug that suits you, the price will certainly suit your pocket-book.

Charges of Corruption, Demoralization and Favoritism in Somerville Department.

CHIEF REMOVED

THAT an amazing state of inefficiency and a deplorable lack of discipline exist in the Somerville police department, is charged by members of the Board of Aldermen of that city. They declare that Chief Neville C. Parkhurst, after about forty years of service, has "lost his grip," that he is ignorant of what his patrolmen are doing, and that he should be supplanted by a "bigger and more active official" in appointments to the higher force is also laid at Chief Parkhurst's door.

Aldermen Turn Down Mayor.

South Boston Mayor John J. Moore, a Republican and supporter of the police, has been told by the aldermen that the present action should be taken. The aldermen have accepted a resolution, passed by a vote of 12 to 1, to demand the removal of Chief Parkhurst. The resolution also provides for the appointment of a committee to investigate the police department.

"Juggled Civil Service Lists."

Chief Parkhurst is charged with having juggled the civil service lists to the advantage of his friends. The aldermen have passed a resolution to demand his removal. The resolution also provides for the appointment of a committee to investigate the police department.

"Liquor Law Violated."

There are too many places in the city where liquor is sold out front, and too many places where it is sold out back. The aldermen have passed a resolution to demand the removal of Chief Parkhurst. The resolution also provides for the appointment of a committee to investigate the police department.

BOSTON'S NEED TO KEEP IN RACE TOLD BY J. F. CROCKER.

Keep Money at Home, Get New Industries, Says Leading Banker.

OPPORTUNITIES PLENTY Commends Governor Guild's Idea of Commission to Study City's Commerce.

John F. Crocker, president of the Chamber of Commerce and one of the leading bankers of Boston, in an interview for the Boston Sunday American yesterday, said that a commission to study the city's commerce, as suggested by Governor Guild, would be a most timely and useful move. He said that the city's commerce had been in a state of stagnation for some time, and that it was necessary to take steps to revitalize it.
